The 2017-2018 Epic Local Pass Unlocks the Best of the West with Access to Whistler Blackcomb, Park City and Tahoe; 2016-2017 Ski Season Extended at Heavenly and Northstar

NORTH AND SOUTH LAKE TAHOE, Calif./Nev. – March 7, 2017 –While Tahoe continues to enjoy the largest snowpack in 22 years, skiers and snowboarders already are looking ahead to the 2017-2018 winter season and the addition of iconic Whistler Blackcomb on the Epic Local Pass. The Epic Local Pass offers West Coast skiers and snowboarders the best value on access to Whistler Blackcomb in British Colombia, Canada; Park City in Utah; Heavenly, Northstar and Kirkwood in Tahoe; and Vail, Beaver Creek, Breckenridge, Keystone and Arapaho Basin in Colorado, with limited restrictions. Skiers and snowboarders who purchase their 2017-2018 Epic Local Pass now instead of next fall are guaranteed the lowest price at $639 for adults and $339 for children, and will even receive six “Buddy Tickets” if purchased before April 9, 2017.

Additionally, due to unprecedented snowfall, Heavenly, Northstar and Kirkwood will extend their 2016-2017 seasons to April 30, April 23 and April 16 respectively. The Best of Tahoe resorts bring together the spirit of Lake Tahoe’s most famed attributes in one season pass — from Heavenly’s high-energy atmosphere and unmatched lake views, to the relaxed California luxury of Northstar California and Kirkwood’s authentic, big-mountain terrain. Renowned natural snowfall coupled with the most sophisticated snowmaking systems on the West Coast invite skiers and riders to experience the best conditions at Lake Tahoe.

Those unsure of which pass to purchase can visit any Vail Resorts’ mountain resort this spring to explore the terrain and apply that day’s lift ticket purchase toward a 2017-2018 season pass. This allows skiers and riders to receive a taste of the mountains this season in preparation for an amazing season of skiing or riding next year.
