

Beaver Creek Winter Culinary Weekend presented by GMC Returns Jan. 24 - 27, 2019

Colorado Chefs and flavors kick off this year's event; Saturday Showcase to feature an intimate concert with Lord Huron BEAVER CREEK, Colo., Dec. 13, 2018 – Set at the base of a World Cup mountain, Beaver Creek Winter Culinary Weekend returns Jan. 24 through Jan. 27 with new events, guest chefs, and a performance by Lord Huron.

During Winter Culinary Weekend, Beaver Creek guests have the unique opportunity to mix and mingle with celebrity guest chefs, get to know Beaver Creek's world-renowned chefs, sip on local craft beers, specialty cocktails, and wine – all while reveling in endless hours of phenomenal skiing. This year's event will kick off with Colorado Flavors, an event celebrating the flavors and personalities of Colorado with two guest chefs – James Beard Award winner, Alex Seidel, and Top Chef contestant, Brother Luck.

New this year, Synesthesia will offer guests the opportunity to savor outstanding bites, treats, and libations at the main event showcasing premier chefs from Beaver Creek and guest chefs from throughout the country. The tasting will be followed by an exclusive and intimate concert with American indie band, Lord Huron.

Year-after-year, Beaver Creek welcomes the finest culinary talent from across the world to collaborate with resident chefs on gourmet pairings and mountain adventure. Elevating the experience in 2019 are guest chefs Emma Bengtsson of Aquavit; James Beard Award winner Jamie Bissonnette of Toro; Christopher Czarnecki of The Joel Palmer House; Brother Luck of Four by Brother Luck; James Beard Award winner Alex Seidel of Fruition, Mercantile Dining and Provision, and Chook Charcoal Chicken; and chef, restaurateur and television personality Geoffrey Zakarian.

A portion of the proceeds from this year's Winter Culinary Weekend will benefit Bright Future Foundation. Based in Eagle County, Bright Future Foundation empowers families and individuals affected by domestic violence and sexual assault. More information on Bright Future Foundation is available at <http://mybrightfuture.org/>.

Guest Chefs:

Emma Bengtsson: Chef Emma Bengtsson was named Executive Chef of Aquavit in 2014, after four years as Executive Pastry Chef at the restaurant. As Aquavit's Executive Chef she has garnered (and retained) three stars from The New York Times and two stars from Michelin, the second female chef in the U.S. accorded that honor, and in 2018, she was named Best Female Chef by the Best Chef Awards in Milan. In fall 2018, Bengtsson was named "Best Female Chef" by the Best Chef Awards. Prior to moving to New York, Emma worked at some of Sweden's most renowned restaurants, including the two-Michelin starred Edsbacka Krog, Restaurant Prinsen, and Operakällaren. Emma attended Stockholm's Hotel and Restaurant School after years of cooking at home with her mother and grandmother in Falkenberg, on the west coast of Sweden. In addition to her work at the restaurant, Emma also is a member of the Food Council for City Harvest, a hunger relief organization devoted to rescuing food for New Yorkers in need.

Jamie Bissonnette: Chef Jamie Bissonnette, a 2014 winner of the James Beard Award Best Chef: Northeast, co-heads the popular tapas destination Toro in Boston, NYC and Bangkok; Boston's beloved Italian enoteca Coppa and Little Donkey in Cambridge. Jamie is also the winner of Food Network's Chopped series and Food & Wine first ever People's Choice Best New Chef. A champion of nose-to-tail cuisine, Jamie is the author of The New Charcuterie Cookbook, with a foreword by Andrew Zimmern. In Fall 2017, Jamie alongside co-chef/owner Ken Oringer, made their Middle Eastern debut with Toro + Ko in Dubai.

Christopher Czarnecki: Chef Christopher Czarnecki's commitment to fine dining was imprinted on him early, literally from the age of 9, when he was allowed to fill the water glasses at his parents' restaurant - originally called Joe's Restaurant and located in Reading, PA and now, The Joel Palmer House, a landmark in Oregon's wine country. Czarnecki stepped out of that world for three years in 2003, when he joined the Army, working in food service, including a year of service in Iraq. Beginning in 2006, Christopher made his way back to The Joel Palmer House kitchen, taking over the reins from his father, Jack Czarnecki, as chef in 2007. Czarnecki revels in the bounty of the restaurants' location in Dayton, in the heart of Oregon's Pinot Noir country. Czarnecki continues the family tradition of cooking with wild mushrooms, building his menu around whatever local mushrooms his foragers bring to the back door of the kitchen, along with other seasonal specialties. Czarnecki and his wife, Mary, are building their own vegetable gardens in order to provide "hyper-local" produce to the restaurant as well as a mushroom cultivation patch on the property. The cellar at The Joel Palmer House reflects Czarnecki's passion for the best local wines. With more than 500 Oregon Pinot noir wines on the list, and a Wine Spectator "Best of" Award of Excellence since 2010.

Brother Luck: Chef Brother Luck started working in professional kitchens when he was 14-years-old. During high school, he was awarded multiple culinary scholarships through competition cooking organizations such as C-CAP (Careers through Culinary Arts Program) and The Art Institutes (Best Teen Chef 2001). Luck graduated from The Art Institute of Phoenix and is a Certified Executive Chef through the American Culinary Federation. After culinary school, Chef Brother Luck continued to work in many fine dining kitchens around the world including the Takitei and Kinjoro Ryokans located in Kanazawa, Japan. His first restaurant Brother Luck Street Eats was inspired by street food from around the world. In March 2017, he opened Four by Brother Luck in downtown Colorado Springs focusing on the four providers behind his cooking - hunters, fishermen, farmers and gatherers. He has received numerous accolades including "Best Local Chef" and "Most Cutting Edge Restaurant" by The Gazette Newspaper and Colorado Springs Independent. Most recently, Brother was a favorite on Bravo's Top Chef Season 15.

Alex Seidel: Alex Seidel is chef-owner of Fruition Restaurant, Mercantile dining & provision, Füdmill and Chook. Zagat has named Fruition the number one restaurant in Colorado every year since it opened. 5280 Magazine included Fruition in its list of 25 Best Restaurants every year the ranking has run. Seidel himself has been the recipient of many accolades, including Food & Wine magazine's Best New Chef in 2010, Chef of the Year titles from local media including Denver Magazine and 5280. Seidel was awarded the 2018 James Beard Foundation Best Chef: South West. In addition to his restaurants, Seidel owns Fruition Farms Creamery, Colorado's first artisan sheep's milk creamery, located in Larkspur, Colorado. Seidel participates in numerous off-site events for both charitable and fine dining experiences. He very much enjoys furthering the culture of cuisine all the while staying down to earth and championing such causes as food advocacy, mindfulness when it comes to eating habits and waste. Becoming a chef and a business owner has allowed him to hone his very impressive skills while controlling the ingredients and the sourcing of his provisions.

Geoffrey Zakarian: Chef Geoffrey Zakarian is one of the nation's premier restaurateurs. With an eye for style and a passion for hospitality, he operates food and beverage venues across the United States, including The Lambs Club in New York City, The National in New York City, The Water Club at The Borgata in Atlantic City and Point Royal at The Diplomat Beach Resort. In addition to the restaurants, his company, Zakarian Hospitality, has produced the acclaimed cookbooks, Geoffrey Zakarian's Town / Country and My Perfect Pantry: 150 Easy Recipes from 50 Essential Ingredients. Zakarian won the 4th Season of Food Network's The Next Iron Chef: Super Chefs, earning him the esteemed title of Iron Chef. He is the co-host of the Emmy-nominated talk show, The Kitchen, and appears regularly as one of America's favorite judges on hit show Chopped. Outside of his work, he serves as Chairman of the City Harvest Food Council, an organization committed to fighting hunger.
